

Tim Hire, Tulare County Superintendent of Schools, Biography

Tim A. Hire is the Tulare County Superintendent of Schools and serves over 100,000 students in 48 Tulare County school districts and Charter schools in California's Central Valley. Tim began his education career as a high school agriculture teacher and was quickly recognized as an educational leader. He earned his administrative credential as a participant in the California State University Chancellor's Fellowship program through CSU Fresno. He has served as both an assistant principal and principal at the secondary level before spending nearly 12 years as a district superintendent. His visionary leadership has brought about increased academic performance for all student groups, especially English language learners, in the districts he served through initiatives that create equity and access using technology, 21st century classroom redesign, ongoing, rigorous and consistent instruction, and other facility upgrades to build the highest quality learning environments that inspire students and staff to excel. As Tulare County Superintendent of Schools since January 2019, Tim envisions the creation of programs that promote greater access to career technical education, extra-curricular activities, STEM careers exploration, skills development for young adults with special needs, and increased support for English language learners and their teachers.
